Cattle Camps

Hi I'm Betty Williams, and I would like to invite you to our ranch to learn how to train your dog to work cattle in a quiet, confident manner. The ranch is located in Central Montana in the scenic foothills of the Snowy Mountains. The emphasis of this camp will be on understanding cattle and how to effectively train a dog to control the cattle. I have a lifetime of experience working cattle with stockdogs, having grown up on our family's ranch. Each day will start out with a short lecture and discussion and then it will be off to the corrals or pasture. Each dog will be worked twice throughout the day on cattle. Sheep will be available if needed to fix problem areas.

We have a large arena along with several smaller working pens. We have the flexibility to set up any of the ASCA courses and can work on any trialing problems that you might be having.

If time allows, we will enjoy some of the sites of the ranch and the surrounding area. Spring creek is a blue ribbon trout stream, so if you enjoy fishing throw in your fishing gear.

We have a large yard where you are welcome to camp. There are no water or sewer hookups and limited electrical hookups. If you want electrical hookup bring your own extension cords.

Requirements

All dogs in attendance must be in good health, up to date on vaccinations, have flea and tick protection, and be able to provide a proof of rabies vaccination. Dogs will not be left loose unattended on the ranch at any time. Dogs participating in the camp will need to have a good stop and call off of the stock. Handlers should bring comfortable working shoes, sun screen, and a chair. A non refundable $200 deposit is required with your registration to hold a working slot. The reminder will be due at check in.
